This article covers basic ways to use the Campus Ad hoc Reporting tools to design Ad hoc filters that can produce the school mappings needed to identify data sets for the Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC). If the required information is not entered into Campus, a filter will not be able to produce the data. The filters used within this document utilize the Filter Designer's Query Wizard. Ad hoc fields vary by state; therefore, examples within this article may need to use different data elements from what appears in the examples.

Also note, the Query Wizard returns data based on AND. For most of the examples, logical expressions should be entered to indicate an AND or OR is required. This is not represented in all of the captured images, but should be incorporated into your queries.

Ad Hoc filters will not report any student or course that is not enrolled or assigned to the school the filter is being run. Any students or courses that need to be added to a school's mapping will need to be manually added using the Quick Search feature in the school's mapping tool.

The CRDC is run for previous years' data, not current years' data.
